About Seminar

PHILOSOPHICAL COUNSELLING VIA SOCIO-PHILOSOPHICAL PERSPECTIVE IN CLASSICAL FILMS DOWN THE AGES

Seeks to explore how cinema, as a mirror of society, reflects and reshapes human thought, values, and dilemmas. Classical films across eras have often embodied philosophical questions on existence, morality, freedom, identity, and social justice.

By engaging with these films through a socio-philosophical lens, the seminar aims to highlight their potential as tools for philosophical counselling—helping individuals and communities to reflect, heal, and grow. Scholars, educators, and film enthusiasts will deliberate on the transformative role of cinema in nurturing critical and ethical consciousness.

Objectives of the Seminar

- To explore the relevance of philosophical counselling as reflected through classical films across different eras.
- To examine how socio-philosophical perspectives are represented in cinema and their implications for individual and collective wellbeing.
- To identify the ways in which cinematic narratives can contribute to philosophical counselling practices.
- To highlight the role of classical films in shaping societal values, identity, and moral imagination.
- To encourage participants to critically engage with film as a medium for self-reflection, guidance, and meaning-making.
